Not all haulage contractors use conditions of carriage, such as those of the Road Haulage Association (RHA). Although the RHA Conditions of Carriage are the leading carrying conditions in the UK, some haulage contractors do not use conditions of carriage at all, making them common law carriers. Others use 'all risks' conditions of carriage (often the case with car transporter firms). Therefore, it must not be assumed that a haulage contractor operating in the UK will always use the RHA conditions.
