You're dealing with Chartered Insurance Underwriting Agents

The title Chartered Insurance Underwriting Agents is awarded to companies that make a public declaration of their commitment to professional standards. It is granted by the Chartered Insurance Institute (CII), the professional body for insurance, dedicated to building trust in the insurance and financial planning profession.

Every firm that holds Chartered status adheres to an ethical code that underpins broader commitments to professional values. These include putting customers' interests first, investing in ongoing development of their people's technical skills and knowledge, and supporting wider initiatives that benefit society as well as the growth of the profession.

Only Chartered Insurance Underwriting Agents are entitled to use this logo, the outward symbol of their commitment to the Chartered Ethos.

We are publicly committed to professionalism

In every Chartered firm, the majority of frontline staff will be members of their professional body, and you will have access to Chartered Insurance Underwriting Agents at your request. Members have access to industry-leading technical intelligence, education and training. They help shape the profession and its response to changing times, and they are obliged to maintain their technical knowledge through continuing professional development.

In choosing a Chartered firm you can be sure that its people have made a commitment to being ethically driven, knowledgeable and to providing guidance that is based wholly around your needs and requirements. It also means that as a firm, it is committed to providing a high quality of service and support.

You can find more details on the aims, standards and what makes a firm Chartered online at cii.co.uk/chartered. You can also look up any company and confirm its status using the CII's Chartered firm search.
